

Withdrawing money from PensionBee if you're incapable of work due to health reasons

If you are not working and are unable to do so due to a medical condition, then you might be able to withdraw money from your PensionBee Plan.

If you are already aged 55 or over then you will be able to withdraw money from your pension via the Beehive in the usual way and these forms are not required.

What are the conditions?

- You must not currently be in work due to either physical or mental impairment
- You must not be able, nor intend to return to work
- We must receive written confirmation from a fully registered medical practitioner that you are incapable of working now or in the future in any job due to either physical or mental impairment

What now?

You should complete section one of this form if you would like to withdraw funds from your PensionBee Plan due to being incapable of work. You'll then need to give the form to a registered medical practitioner for them to complete section two. A list of registered medical practitioners can be found at the following website <https://www.gmc-uk.org/doctors/register/LRMP.asp>

There is a fee of £300 + VAT for PensionBee to process and pay out a successful request for an Ill Health Pension. This fee is chargeable each time we are required to fully assess a new request for Ill Health Pension. The fee will not be charged should your request be unsuccessful.

What next?

Once we receive the forms back, we will assess the information and let you know our decision and any next steps including the withdrawal option available. This is not always a straightforward process and may involve us requesting further information from yourself, your existing doctor, or other medical professionals. We may also request further information to evidence that you are out of work. We'd like to make clear that this is not a standard process and due to the complexity and varying factors involved may take anywhere from a number of weeks to a number of months.

Full information regarding our Ill Health Policy can be found within our Terms & Conditions.
